WHO'S WHO

GSR

Last year, the news concerning the new industrial partnership between GSR Cocoa Machinery and the Swiss giant Bühler went around the world, giving a positive signal to the sector

These two realities combined their capabilities and expertise enriched on the ground in order to assist their customers which are currently benefitting, inside the total line concept developed by Bühler, of complete pressing lines composed of high quality presses designed and manufactured by GSR. This year, GSR will again stand by Bühler during the World Cocoa Conference in Dominican Republic, an international paramount event in the cocoa sector to which the Italian Company will take part together with the most important players of the sector.

Born in Italy in 1992, today GSR is one of the main interlocutors in the cocoa world, able to establish itself in the marketplace side-by-side of multi-national realities; in its nearly 25 years of activity it could deepen relationships worldwide. Ivory Coast, Ghana, Nigeria, Cameroun, Latin America, Asia, as well as USA and Russia: from the province of Lecco, North Italy, GSR is able to work together with the top players of its sector, granting quality, reliability and an approach oriented to the customer's total satisfaction.

GSR is specialised in designing, manufacturing and testing pressing lines committed to process cocoa and masses to extract fats, oils, essences. Its complete pressing lines and peripheral machines nowadays represent the widest range on the market, able to answer either the necessities of someone who is looking for high productive capacities up to 2880 kg/h, or who – operating in smaller contexts or in research laboratories – needs compact sizes and reduced productive capacities. Whatever the necessity of its own interlocutor, time after time GSR studies each equipment in order to grant the best results according to customer's needs every time.

Anybody entering GSR's headquarters will immediately feel how the company takes care of any detail; any action is pursued with the rightful precision both in engineering and manufacturing departments where a young and dynamic team installs, tests and develops any new order.

Resistance, reliability and safety granted by GSR have set the new global standards of the sector, allowing the company to manufacture pressing lines engineered according to a strong esthetic impact and with a recognised ergonomic value by using the best raw materials, advanced hydraulic engineering, software able to control pressing lines at any level, components which grant high productive efficiency with the lowest Total Cost Operation for each processed ton, as well as high reliability, continuity and high hygienic level.

Next year, GSR will celebrate its 25th anniversary, a target reached by travelling a long and challenging road which brought the factory 'Made in Italy' to become one of the most important leaders on the market; not only in designing and manufacturing, but also in upgrading the pressing lines, a process able to increase productive efficiency making them up-to-date, more efficient and competitive.
